

I'm Thinking Tonight Of My Blue Eyes

Ear Training Exercises

Use this sheet in conjunction with the web page at communityguitar.com devoted to learning the melody and chords to Thinking Tonight by ear. As you find the notes of a phrase, write them in the blanks above the staff as scale degrees. (The phrases are indicated below the staff and the number of notes per phrase should match that indicated on the web page. Notice that phrase 1 is repeated after phrase 2, so there's no need to work it out again.) Once you've got the scale degrees right, play the melody on the guitar. Remember, as you make the transition from paper to fretboard, don't guess or feel your way toward the melody. Use your understanding of the scale itself and the scale degrees you've just sketched out. Often the notes of the melody will help you figure out the chords as well.
